His first attempt at the latter feat resulted in his making the trip, one mile and nine-tenths of a mile, in one hour and forty-five minutes.

-Henry Thompson, alias Poley Tur-ner, the negro who broke into the saloon on the corner of Second and Union streets, last Wednesday morning, and nearly used up the proprietor, Mr. Regolette, who tried to capture him, but was run down and taken by the policemen on that beat, is charged with houssbreaking, burglary and pettit-larceny, for which Recorder Duff tried him yeserday and bound him over to the criminal court.

Those who possess plenty of room forimprovement, specially invited. Persons musically inclined preferred, particularly blowers of tin horns. Egotistical and self-conceited people will be honored with official positions in the society. Owing to the large number of suspected parties, the membership will ticipated at the initial meeting.

Hartman; treasurer, F. C. Schaper; verwolter (armorer), R. Stotz. The memership of the club is limited to eighteen members, and its organization is now complete. Active preparations are mak-ing to give their first shuetzenfest about the first of October, when we may see some fine shooting, as a number o crack sho's are among the membership of the club.

-The remains of a white baby about one day cld, were found under the Mem phis and Louisville railroad bridge across Third street yesterday morning. It was well formed, and apparently had come into the world alive and healthy. The baby was wrapped up in an old piece of calico, with a piece of alpaca tied around the body, to which was attached a piece of fire-brick, evidently with the intention of drowning the infant. There was no water where the body was found, and it is supposed it was killed in some other way. Coroner Spelman held an inquest, but could get no clue to the auther of the infanticide.

-An exciting and dangerous accident occurred Sunday morning on the Madison street crossing of the Memohis and Charleston railway, caused by the switching engine tooting its whistle immediately under the bridge, while Mr. I. J. Merritt's rockaway, containing his wife and child, was passing over the bridge. The horse took fright at the hideous noise, ran away, upset the rock-away dragging the vehicle along the Nicolson pavement, the occupants, remarkable to state, escaping with their lives, but severely bruised. The vehicle was considerably injured. It should be a rule rigidly entorced by the railway company that no whistles should be tooted under or near that locality, as the most docile animal will startle at the sound of a steam whistle under their feet, and will some day result in a shocking catastrophe.

-Two games of base-ball were played Sunday afternoon—the Memphis Reds vs. the Riversides, at Central park, and the Mutuals, of Chelses, vs. the Oneidas, of South Memphis, on the Mutuals's ground. The first game resulted in a victory for the Memphis Rads over the Riversides by a score of 11 to 9. First base by hits-Reds 14, Riversides 7; by errors-Reds 11, Riversides 10; left on bases-Reds 9, R versides 4; fair flys caught-Reds 6, Riversides 10; struck out-Reds 1, Riversides 6 times. Time of game, two hours and thirty-five minutes. Umpire, Mr. Pony Serner. Some complaint was made against the rulings of the umpire, which, it was claimed, gave the Riverside boys no showing. The second game resulted in a victory to the Mutuais, of Chelsea, over the Oneidas, of South Memphis, by a score of 11 to 7. Time of game, one hour and forty-five minutes. Umpire, Frank Jones, of the Memphis Biue stockings.

HOMICIDE.

A Black Assassin Attempts the Life of Captain P. B. Starr, Mate of the Steamer Illinois.

A Liberal Exchange of Pistol Shots Re sults in the Death of the Asassin-Captain Starr Held Blameless.

On Saturday night, at Niblett's landing, about —— miles below this city, a negro named Charley Webb was shot and instantly killed by Captain P. R. Starr, mate of the Illinois, under the following circumstances, related to us by an eye-witness: Webb, the negro cal feeling and prospects in North Carman who was killed, got aboard the Illi-olina. General Clingman thought it nois at Easton's, taking cabin (texas) passage up to Niblett's landing, on the Mississippi side of the river. As soon as the Illinois rounded out from Easton's. Webb went down on deck and began

ABUSING THE COLORED PEOPLE below, apparently, as a negro man states "bossing" over them because he (Webb) could pay cabin fare and his less rortunate fellow-beings could only afford deck rates. Webb became very boister ous and overbearing, until some of the colored deckers complained to the mate (Captain Starr) that they had paid their fare, and thought they ought to be pro-tected from such ruffianism. Captain Starr walked aft, where Webb was cutting up his tantrums, and remonstrated with him, but Webb, apparently thinking that Captain Starr was meddling where he had no business, grew more abusive to the deck passengers, and became somewhat demonstrative toward the officers of the boat, making threats against Ca. tain Starr, and

FLOURISHING A PISTOL to the terror of the people on the boat. Captain Starr was notified of the threats the negro was making, and immediately walked back, and marched Webb ou forward and up on the roof, where he remained until the Illinois arrived at Niblett's, where Webb got off, renewing his threats against the officers and some of the deck passengers on the toat. It was after dark when the boat arrived at Niblett's, and it was thought that the matter would end with the negro's departure from the boat, but as soon as the torch was lit, Webb hid himself behind a tree and FIRED ONE SHOT AT CAPTAIN STARR, who was indiscreetly standing on shore between the torchlight and his assassin. As soon as the shot was fired, Captain Starr realized that Webb was attempting to carry out his threat to kill somebody and not wishing to be that somebody went aboard the bost, secured a pisto and returned to where he had been superintending the discharge or receipt of some freight, and arrived there in time to hear another stunner from behind the tree, this time the ball whizzing so close by his head as to awaken a doubt in his mind whether or not he could "hold the fort." On hearing the second shot, and realiz ing that the slug had carried away no part of his body, Captain Starr discovered Webb peeping round apparently to see the result of his pistol practice by torchlight, and, leveling his repeater, TURNED 'ER LOOSE, pee ing the bark so close to Webb's ears as to make him leave the tree in search be limited. A crowded gathering is an- of another and a more secure ambush. As he left the tree Starr fired a second ward into the brain, causing death almost instantly. A number of men cocked, and finger on the trigger, showing that he was in the act himself of delivering another shot, which perhaps might have done the work for Starr if his shot had not taken effect as we have stated. The above are the particulars as related to us by an eye-witness, and we are informed that all on board the boat. white and black, passengers and crew ENTIRELY EXONERATED CAPTAIN STARR from any blame, all believing that i Starr had not killed Webb, his own life would have been taken. The Illinois lay at Niblett's several hours, but nothng was done toward arresting Captain Starr, and just before the boat left he wrote a note to Sheriff Ousley that he would answer for the deed at Floreyville on the return trip of the Illinois.

THE SOUTH.

Views of Governor Kellogg, of Louisi ann-He kelieves the Republicans will Carry North and South Carolina, Louisiana and Florida.

General Clingman Sanguine that the Democrats will Carry North Carolina-The Negro Vote-Kellogg on Mistissippi.

From the New York Tribune, of the third instant, we copy the following:

KELLOGG'S STATEMENT. Governor Kellogg, of Louisiana, was in the city yesterday, and, in conversation with a Tribune reporter, he made the following remarks with reference to the political condition of the south: "The comparative indifference regarding political matters which I hear spoken of in the north seems to extend over the country. Certainly there is no enthusi-sem is the south. I might, indeed, say that there is scarcely a general interest Southern Democrats do not anticipate, l believe, a change of government. They have an exaggerated idea of the power and influence of the executive branch of the government to control an election, and they expect tremendous exertions on the part of those now in power. The local governments in the south are the chief bones of contention, and the interest centers chiefly there, for it is in connection with local politics that the southern Democrats expect to find their reward. And let me say here that one who is not samiliar with southern life cannot form the least idea of the supreme greed for office which reigns throughout the south. "The negroes are devoted asjever to the Reguldican party. It means to them as fully as it ever did the continuation in power of their friends, and the perpetuation of those principles on which, in their opinion, their rights as citizens depend. If a northerner unfamiliar with southern politics were to go south he would hear a great deal said about a division in negroes' votes. Louisiana Democrats would tell him that they are going to carry the State election with the help of the colored voters. Now th s is all buncombe; it is preposterous, and no one knows it better than the very men who would insist most strongly upon its truth. At the recent Democratic State convention in Baton Rouge the managers nominated a ticket composed of white men, without a single colored man upon it, and furthermore, a majority of the nominees, in importance if not numerically, were ex-Confederate officers. Now is it probable that such a ticket i: going to be supported by col-ored voters? There are ten thousand more colored than white voters in the State, and they will carry the election without a shadow of doubt. In Mississippi, if there were a fair election, the result would be the same. But look at leaves, but very little is heard about it. The executive government is in the hands of the opposition, and all complaints are pigeon-holed. The Federal government can only interfere at the request of the State executive, and he of course will not request interference. I say the Republican ticket ought to succeed in Mississippi by the number of Republican voters, but there is very little chance of its success. In most of the southern States there is, I

"Northern men," added Governor Kellogg, "have a very into curate con-ception of the actual condition of the south, and it is not surprising that they radically change their opinions after spending even a short time among us GENERAL THOMAS L. CLINGMAN'S EX-

PECTATION OF TILDEN'S SUCCES IN THAT STATE.
A reporter of the Tribune called or General Thomas L. Clingman, of North Carolina, at the New York hotel yestervay, to obtain his views as to the politisomewhat too early to hazard a decided opinion, but he said that he had little doubt Tilden would carry North Caro-ina by a majority of ten thousand or fifteen thousand, unless the Republican party should resort to fraudulent voters and ballot box stuffing. If these prac tices had not been employed in 1872, Mr. Greeley would undoubtedly have carried the State. All classes in North Carolina desired a change in the administration of the national government, which had wrought such great evils in the south. General Clingman said that he did not question the motives of Governor Hayes, as expressed in his letter of acceptance, and thought that, if elected, he would earnestly endeavor to carry out his promised reforms; but party pressure would be too strong for him, and he would be compelled to succumb to its influences. Furthermore, he was put forward as the candidate of a party which, since the termination of the war, had done all in its power to keep alive sectional issues by arraying the north against the south. Tilden was very popular in North Carolina, and would undoubtedly poll a large vote in November. There was a prevailing belief in New Eugland and the Middle States, that it was a common practice throughout the south to intimidate negroes from voting. This opinion was totally erroneous, so far as it applied to North Carolina. General Clingman said he had never known of such a case of intimidation in that State. On the contrary, so-called 'negro leagues" had done all in their power to prevent by threats and other means the continually increasing class

gress at the recent rate, the people may congratulate themselves that the acme of office-holding at least, if not good times and prosperity, will speedily obtain in full and multifarious glory. There will soon be a grand catalysis of old-time systems and foundations. There will be no more need of laborers, mechanics, artisans, farmers or traders; capital and labor, granges and trades unions will all be merged or metamorphosed into one vast column of officeholders, who, if they cannot fleece anymeaning now sought to be wrung from the language of the law; if the intention went out to where the body fell, and of the framers of the constitution, and discovered that Webb's right hand was the meaning of the phraseology used firmly grasping his pistol, which was was what is now tried to be construed therefrom, there would have been employed very different language. The words "county town" evidently applies only to the town of the district in each county where the court house or county seat is located, and not to every little village in all the districts of every county. The city of Memphis is included in several districts, instead of being included in any one district as the law requires. The lar guage of the constitution, "Except districts including county towns, therefore, can only apply to such part of a town or city as lies in the district which contains the county seat, which, in the case of Memphis, is the fifth civil district. If a district contain a part of a town or city, in which is situated the county courthouse, that part is the "county town," and that district in which it lies is alone entitled to an additional magistrate. Other districts, while they may embrace a portion of the same "town" or city, yet as they do not include the whole "town" or city, or part thereof containing the courthouse which is the county seat, are not entitled to the additional justice contemtowns," used? Why not say simply

Why was now selling for $1 at the great clearing the phrase, "D stricts including county | sale of fice clothing now being disposed districts which include a town or part thereof, if it was not meant to apply generally, and not strictly to those districts only which contain the city or town, or part of the same, in which lies the county seat? The word "county" is put before "town" expressly to qualify the same, and to show that the districts embracing the capital town or city, or part of the same in which the courthouse

Paris mourns the Baron Brisse, for so many years the gastronomic editor of the Liberte. During the last decade of the second empire, Baron Brisse became one of the proprietors of a restaurant at the corner of the Passage de l'Opera, which obtained a certain vogue for its daily bill of fare at a fixed price. In his contributions to the Liberte Baron Brisse did at least the good service of instructing housekeepers how to make the best of the changing market of the changing seasons, an art wofully neglected in our own country.
